2017

ICFL 2017 will bring together physicians, researchers and allied health professionals in the field of Hepatology, Gastroenterology, as well as Diabetology, Nutrition, Radiology, and Cardiology, in order to address the growing impact of Fatty Liver and its relationship with the other organs in the body.

Together we can raise awareness across all specialties to help guide and treat our patients, increase our knowledge on the early warning signs, create better guidance for treatment options, as well as provide access to a wider spectrum of data/research from a multidisciplinary point of view.

We look forward to gathering together in Seville, Spain.
